

Figure 7 — compositional E-integration

Independently validated TFNE components compose into one hierarchical system with a causally attributable multiscale response.

A localized relative-biophysical perturbation, computationally inert when its typed coupling is disabled, propagates through declared coupling from its owner population through the hierarchical network into source and observation space.